Crack Skipper of Silver Sheet Sees Film Possibilities in Historic Figure.

D. W. Griffith was standing in the foyer of the Rialto Theater last night when approached for an interview. Mr. Griffith was resting from an impromptu speech he had just made to the patrons of "Orphans of the Storm."

The writer approached him with an expression on his face that must have shown "the inquiring reporter, every day he asks five questions." "Yes," said D. W. G., ready to get it over with.

"First off," we queried, "what are you going to do next?"

"I don't know."

"We promptly told him that a lit-tle melee between capital and labor would be "very interesting." would be "very interesting."

"Yes," said the veteran of the screen, "but suppose it didn't get across. You know that a producer of the speaking stage can try out his ideas for a paltry ten thousand dollars a try. If he has an idea and it turns out a failure he can fry again. But with a picture costing a million dollars or more he must be sure of his play, and furmust be sure of his play, and fur-thermore, he must be certain of its appeal to millions.

"This present picture has just opened in London, and it is going ever there in a big way. You see, French revolution and its associations than we are. 'Orphans of the Storm' carries its appeal to them just as effectively, or perhaps more intimately, than it does here." We insisted that Mr. Griffith might give us an American historical play, with all the faithfulness of detail he has in his present picture.

"You know, I've been thinking of George Washington," he said. "I've been reading over a great many books on the Father of Our Country, and the thing is fascinating, but it will have to be a play, as I said before, that will carry its appeal to millions. And, as a matter of fact, it would be very difficult to dramatize Washington's life for the screan.'

We asked the Crack Skipper of the Silver Sheet one more. 'What about the German films?" Mr. Griffith smiled. "What about them? Nothing ex-

of the Washington Oratorio Society, conductor of the Washington Choral Society, and one of the most promi nent teachers of concert, recital, and opera singing, died yesterday at Gar-field Hospital after a long illness. Born in London fifty-three years ago, Mr. Wrightson had been a resident of this city for the past twenty years. He was educated at St. Paul's Cathedral Choir School in London and traveled abroad for three years. Coming to this country he played a prominent part in the formation of choral groups in Chicago and West Virginia, becoming dean of the school of music at the University of West Virginia in 1902. He organized and was elected president of the Washington College of Music in June, 1904, and was honor-ary musical director at the James town Exposition in 1907. He was manager of the Washington Sym-phony Orchestra and was one of the three men who financed its deficit. Mr. Wrightson was for ten years director of the choir of the Church of the Covenant and was also conductor of the Washington Concert Choir. He conducted a studio at 1228 Connecticut avenue northwest. His home was at 1625 Sixteenth street

Surviving him are his widow, two sons, and a daughter. The funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. to-morrow at the Church of the Covenant, with interment in Rock Creek
